Welcome to Williams Lake, British Columbia

The City of Williams Lake serves as the main hub for the vast Cariboo Chilcotin Coast region of BC, stretching from Bella Coola in the west to the rural communities of Hazelton and Horsefly to the east. It is a land of unparalleled beauty, where the geography ranges from dense forests and pristine mountain lakes to arid cactus-covered vistas, rugged canyons and open plains. The area is a major attraction for outdoor enthusiasts, offering a wealth of opportunities for mountain biking, ATVing, snowmobiling, kayaking, fishing, hunting, skiing (both downhill and cross-country), camping, and hiking. As a destination, the Cariboo Chilcotin Coast offers a wide range of year-round activities for the entire family. Not only is the region diverse in landscape and wildlife, it is rich in culture and history which are sure to keep your interest and provide a memorable experience.

The History of Williams Lake

On March 15th 1929 Williams Lake became incorporated. Williams Lake is named in honour of Shuswap (Secwepemc) chief William, whose counsel prevented the Shuswap from joining the Chilcotin in their uprising against the settler population.

During the Cariboo Gold Rush in 1860, Gold Commissioner Philip Henry Nind and Chief Constable William Pinchbeck were sent from Victoria to organize a local government and maintain law and order. At the time, two pack trails led to the goldfields, one from the Douglas Road and another trail through the Fraser Canyon. Both met at Williams Lake, which made it a good choice for settlers and merchants. By 1861, Commissioner Nind had built a government house and had requested the funds to build a jail. With the center of local government being at Williams Lake, the miners and businessmen all had to travel there to conduct their business and soon the town had a post office, a courthouse, a roadhouse and the jail that Nind had requested. William Pinchbeck had been busy with building his own roadhouse, saloon and store. Eventually he owned most of the valley.

In 1863, the town received news of the construction of the Cariboo Road which made them excited believing it would pass through their already established and important trading center. However, the road builder Gustavus Blin Wright rerouted the original trail so that it bypassed Williams Lake and went through 150 Mile House instead.

The Williams Lake by-pass doomed the city and accusations flew that Gustavus Blin Wright had changed the route for his own personal benefit as he owned a roadhouse at Deep Creek along the new route. Regardless of Wright's motives, Williams Lake was forgotten and wouldn't be reborn until nearly half a century later with the construction of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, later BC Rail and now CN Rail.

Williams Lake – Mural Capital of the Cariboo Chilcotin

Williams Lake's official designation as Mural Capital of the Cariboo Chilcotin was solidified in 2016 with the unveiling of the new sign at the intersection of Highways 97 and 20 has been well received by locals and tourists alike. Williams Lake now boasts 17 murals with more to come depicting our local history. Murals can be found all around the Lakecity, both in prominent locations and in intimate back alleys. Mural artist Dwayne Davis has been at the helm creating the murals which tell the story of the community in the past, present, and future. A brochure of the mural locations can be picked up at the Williams Lake Visitor Centre.

Williams Lake – Wrestling Day January 2nd

A Day to Call our Own, How `Wrestling Day` became to be.

This Day was derived from the creative minds of 2 early merchants named Alistair MacKenzie & Sid Western. On a cold January 2nd, both men sat against their frosty shop windows & watched the snowflakes whiten the countryside without a single soul in sight. They both agreed that this day must be made a unique one whereby no man & women should work, but should be in the warm embrace of their loved ones. The community made a `gentlemen`s agreement` to which everyone honoured the notion that Wrestling Day was a holiday to be spent in leisure. As Boxing Day follows Christmas Day, the day to follow New Year`s Day seemed fit to be named `Wrestling Day` This day actually became enshrined in a by-law in 1959. One Mayor in the 1970`s attempted to end this holiday, but the community prevented him. The hard-working men & women who worked their hands to the bone to reach even a minimal prosperity deserved another day of relaxation.

Williams Lake Stampede – July long weekend

The first organized Williams Lake Stampede was held in 1920, and people came from all over the Cariboo to take part, in some form or another. They came to camp and compete, to visit, dance, gamble, and part, not necessarily in that order. It was a major social occasion for the entire Cariboo region. In early times the Stampede was held at the beginning of June. Over the years the dates were changed to the last weekend in June. Things have changed quite a bit, but the Williams Lake Stampede is still a time for fun, family, and great rodeo action. It's about tradition and having a good time. This year will mark the 92nd Annual Stampede and will be held on June 29th, June 30th and July 1st and 2nd. Come on back to Williams Lake and enjoy the party.

Things to do

Tourism Discovery Centre

Williams Lake's extraordinary Tourism Discovery Centre is a one-of-a-kind facility. The 14,000 square foot log and timber building stands prominently at the south entrance to the city inviting visitors to stop in and find out what our city and area has to offer. The structural design itself often leaves visitors in awe of the talent our local log home builders and construction companies possess. Housed within the Tourism Discovery Centre is the Museum of the Cariboo Chilcotin, a gift shop, and coffee shop. Stop by and pick up some information on Williams Lake and the area.

Cariboo Memorial Complex swimming pool

The newly renovated swimming pool is now open and ready for you to enjoy. Take a leisure float down the river or enjoy swimming in one of the lanes. The hot tub is ready for you to relax. Come on down and see what we have to offer.

Scout Island Nature Centre

Scout Island Nature Centre is a tranquil oasis of nature in the heart of Williams Lake. There are many trails that you can explore. The Nature Centre is directly on the migration path of hundreds of bird species. Many of them often rest and feed in the lush marsh before continuing their journey, making Scout Island a birder's paradise in spring and fall.

River Valley Trail

Williams Lake and the surrounding area are full of great hiking trails, many within close proximity of the city. The 24 km return Williams Lake River Valley Trail is well maintained and meanders from the Comer Street entrance parking lot all the way to the Fraser River. Following the scenic valley, the trail is great for walking, jogging, biking, skiing, and snowshoeing. Easy access makes it a great option for sightseeing and exercise.

Station House Gallery

The Station House Gallery and Gift Shop, the lake city's public art gallery offers a taste of local history along with contemporary art. The gallery hosts month exhibitions featuring a variety of contemporary works in many mediums by local, regional, and touring artists. Most often there are two shows, one in the Main Gallery and one in the Upper Gallery.

Paradise Cinemas

Enjoy a movie in one of our four movie theatres. The theatre is located at 78 South 3rd Avenue. Movies during the week are at 7pm or 9pm and they have matinees on the weekends. Check out their website www.paradisecinemas.com for what is playing.
